Prayer for the Faithful Departed and in Preparation for Death:

May we indeed be the kind of men we hope to be by the mighty mercy of our generous God. He asks little, he gives much, in this world and the next, to those who love him sincerely—to us if by our love and hope in him we bear all things, sustain all things and give thanks to him for all things (for scripture tells us that the trials of this life are often the weapons of salvation). We are also to commend our souls to him and the souls of those who have travelled the common way of humanity and arrived more promptly before us at their destination. O God, Lord and Creator of all and especially of mankind: God, Father and ruler of your children! arbiter of life and death, guardian and benefactor of our souls, all things are made by you and all things are transfigured and transformed by your Word when their time comes according to your wisdom and providence. Take to yourself now, I pray you our departed brothers and sisters. Take us also to yourself in your own good time, once our allotted span of life has been completed. May the fear of the Lord make us prepared and yet unperturbed, so that at our death we shall not be drawing back and loath to depart, not dragged and torn from this life as men enthralled by the world and the flesh but rather going out readily and willingly to the life of eternal happiness in Christ Jesus our Lord to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.
